

Charles McMicken, UC, & the African American Community

How does a university committed to equity and inclusion deal with its slave-holding founder?

Join us for a community conversation about Charles McMicken, his legacy, and how the University of Cincinnati should move forward to address historical and contemporary issues of inequality.

Thursday, February 28, 2019

First Unitarian Church
536 Linton St, Cincinnati 45219

5:30 p.m.....Opening Reception, with refreshments

6-7:30 p.m.....Discussion, Panel & Audience

7:30 p.m.....Closing Reception

Free and Open to the Public

PANEL:

Sinna Habteselassie

UC Student Body President

Ashley Nkadi

Irate8 co-founder and social activist

Greg Hand

Former UC Vice-President, UC historian of Charles McMicken

Charles E. Jones

Professor and Department Head, UC Africana Studies

David Stradling

Professor of History and Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences
Moderator

McMicken Hall,
present day

THANKS TO OUR SPONSORS

UC College of Arts & Sciences

UC Africana Studies Department

The Niehoff Fund

UC History Department Donors

UC African American Cultural & Resource Center

Research Panel on University-City Relations, UC Affiliate of Universities Studying Slavery

UC HISTORY IN THE CITY

An initiative of the Department of History, University of Cincinnati

#UCHISTintheCity

 @UCHistoryDept

Questions? Please contact History@uc.edu

Find us on Facebook: Conversations in the City: Charles McMicken, UC, & the African American Community

