Arabic Language and Cultures

The study of Arabic allows one to gain the necessary insights into the cultural, religious, and political forces that motivate the inhabitants to that vital region. It is also an important language in other countries. Arabic is the language of Islam, and more than a billion people use it as a vital spiritual component of their daily lives. A good knowledge of Arabic will greatly enhance the employment of travel in the region and the ability to work and interact with Arabic speaking people.

Gordon Goodwin

Majors: Arabic Language and Cultures and International Affairs

Distinctions: Arts & Sciences Honors Scholar, Critical Language Scholarship

"I have had an incredibly positive experience with the College of Arts & Sciences faculty, especially those in the Arabic department. They provide a close-knit and supportive community in which they genuinely know and care about you. A&S has provided me the chance to learn through experience. One of these opportunities includes interning with the History Department documenting heirlooms in Cincinnati. My future plans have me trying to find a career either at home or abroad, as my Arabic studies lend to a career in foreign service. That being said, my time here has also nurtured a love of Cincinnati, and a passion for local government that may see me pursuing a path in city-governance as well."
