"It is hard to narrow down what drew me to this program at the College of Arts & Sciences. I was impressed by the research focus of the curriculum, how diverse the faculty was, the opportunity to take part in internships and co-ops, and the variety of minors and certificates that the college has to offer. The faculty goes beyond the limits of the classroom to help students achieve their dreams. I published my first research paper with a professor who took the time out of her busy schedule to help me and this paper was eventually turned into a published book! I will be pursuing my Masters of International Politics at KU Leuven, Belgium. In the long term, I wish to earn a Ph.D. with the ultimate goal of becoming the Secretary General of the United Nations."
